17 school shootings in 45 days — Florida massacre is one of many tragedies in 2018 Chloe Aiello – CNBC.US NEWS

It's not even two full months into 2018 and there have already been 17 school shootings — more than twice as many as this time last year.

The attack on Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida, is the 17th U.S. school shooting within the first 45 days of the year, according to Everytown for Gun Safety, a gun control advocacy organization.

Everytown has been tracking shootings in schools and universities since 2013. It reports any time a firearm is discharged within a school building or on campus, whether accidentally or intentionally and whether or not anyone has been harmed.

Seventeen people were slain and 14 people were hospitalized in the shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High, authorities said. The suspect, 19-year-old former student Nikolas Cruz, was booked on 17 counts of premeditated murder Thursday, The Associated Press reported.

"No child, teacher or anyone else should ever feel unsafe in an American school," said President Donald Trump, who has resisted calls for greater gun control measures after previous mass shootings. "We are committed to working with state and local leaders to help secure our schools and tackle the difficult issue of mental health," Trump said in his speech. President Donald Trump said repeatedly that he favored arming teachers to protect students, an idea many educators rejected out of hand.

"When you look at all the ways children are impacted by gun violence, you realize what a tremendous problem we have as a country," Tofte said. "We really do deserve to live in a place where children are free from gun violence in their homes, schools and communities."

The massacre at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School on Wednesday was the 180th mass shooting since 2009 and the third in 2018. Everytown for Gun Safety defines a mass shooting as a gun attack that claims the lives of four or more people. Children make up 25 percent of fatalities in mass shootings, Tofte said.
